The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and Historic Resources

Friday, August 18: A Workshop for Historic Preservation Commissioners, Local Government Staff and the Interested Community

The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) is one of this state's most important environmental laws for protecting historic resources. CEQA establishes a series of procedures to ensure that agencies accomplish the law's purposes. The state has adopted CEQA guidelines to assist agencies in implementing the law. This workshop addresses practical issues involved with California's historic preservation requirements under CEQA.

Speakers: Susan Brandt-Hawley, Esq., Brandt-Hawley Law Group
Paige Swartley, Esq., Brandt-Hawley Law Group
Michelle Messinger, California Office of Historic Preservation

Topics include:

CEQA requirements regarding historic resources and how they are defined.

CEQA Guidelines: What are they?

Lead Agencies, Project Proponents, Public at Large

- ◆ Roles & Responsibilities
- ◆ Steps in the Process: From Exemptions to Certification

Preservation Commissions/Boards and the CEQA Process

Steps in Commenting/Establishing the Record: When to comment, what to include, and use of expert testimony

- ◆ Scoping Sessions
- ◆ Negative Declarations & Mitigated Negative Declarations
- ◆ Draft & Final Environmental Impact Reports

Alternatives & Mitigations— requirements re: examination and feasibility

- ◆ Alternatives
- ◆ Mitigations
- ◆ Overriding Considerations

Saturday, August 19: A CEQA Primer

Susan Brandt-Hawley, Esq. will lead a special 2-hour overview of CEQA. This session will cover CEQA basics, including a step-by-step approach to using CEQA, impacts on historic resources and case studies.
